

I throw away so much stuff until I find a very familiar drawing...it's the Doraemon drawing that I showed dad when I was little...

I can't hold back my tears since I suddenly recall my childhood dream: become an animator to create my own story.

Maybe...I can try drawing again?

I was so childish! I need to face reality since I'm already a grown up...

